

Commercial Carpet Cleaners for Deodorizing Your Carpet

Carpets are an important part of a décor. It makes any room alive and comfortable whether it is big or small. However, they can carry dirt, dust, and stains if you don't clean it properly. Though there are vacuum cleaners, which you can use for cleaning the rug, it won't remove the deep-seated dirt and stains on the carpet.

Fortunately, there is a handy machine that you can use for deodorizing the carpet, and that is the commercial carpet cleaner. In this article, you will learn the common features of a commercial carpet cleaning machine.

High Pressure

Commercial rug cleaners usually have a high-pressure level. They can reach up to 150 psi or more. As for the home-use rug cleaning machine, the highest pressure it can attain is 80 psi.

However, there are commercial carpet cleaning machines, which are powerful. Their pressure levels can reach as high as 170 psi, a bit stronger than a standard rug cleaner. But the strongest rug cleaning equipment is the industrial carpet cleaner. Its pressure level can reach as high as 500 psi. Though it has a high-pressure level, it doesn't mean that you can only use it on a big carpet. It has an adjustable setting, which allows you to change the pressure level of the machine.

High Temperature

The temperature of a commercial rug cleaner can reach up to 210°F. There are carpet cleaners, which have heating devices, and there are also machines that don't have it. However, non-heated rug cleaning tools can use hot water for lighter cleaning applications.

Wand Durability

There are two types of wands—one of the upholstery and another one for bigger carpets. If you are cleaning your car interiors and furniture, a 4-inch wand is enough for cleaning them. However, if you are cleaning bigger carpets, you need to use a longer wand.

There are other factors that you must consider when buying a rug cleaner. One of them is the heating time. You need to make sure that the heating time does not exceed more than five minutes. Another thing that you should consider is its resistance. Lastly, you need to check if the machine is environmentally-friendly or not.

These are the common features of a commercial rug cleaner. If you want to read carpet cleaning machines reviews, visit the Clean This Carpet website. The site will tell you the best cleaning equipment that you can use for your floor décor.